Chesterfield County, Virginia:

Open for Business, and Celebrating 400 Years!

Here in Chesterfield County, we heartily welcome you as we celebrate our 400th anniversary! And we look forward to growing with you!

Thirteen years before the pilgrims founded Plymouth in Massachusetts, America was born just east of Chesterfield County at Jamestown in 1607 as the result of a business venture called the Virginia Company of London. Shares of stock were offered and sold by the company to those who wished to invest in the New World.

Only 4 years later—in 1611—Sir Thomas Dale led 300 settlers up the James River some 80 miles from the unhealthy environment of Jamestown. They built the Citie of Henricus, which in 1749 became part of the then newly created Chesterfield County. Henricus lays claim to many firsts:

- First private ownership of land, a unique concept in the world for the common man
- Development of the American free enterprise system
- First cash crop in the New World (tobacco)
- First chartered college in the New World
- First English hospital in the New World

All that happened right here, and we have never looked back. Today, Chesterfield is recognized by America's Promise Alliance as one of the Nation's 100 Best Communities for Young People for the fourth year in a row. Our schools are rated among the best in the nation for offering "what parents want" in their children's schools. Our county government's sound fiscal policies have resulted in AAA bond ratings—the highest available—from all three of the nation's major bond rating agencies. These outstanding results have been achieved thanks to our citizens, business community, and government working together to further strengthen the outstanding quality of life we enjoy in Chesterfield.

The Chesterfield County Chamber of Commerce leads the way in ensuring that business and commerce will remain as relevant and important in the year 2011, and beyond, as it was in the year 1611. We are comprised of 600+ member businesses, representing 800 locations, committed to further strengthening Chesterfield's pro-business environment through an ambitious five-year vision for 2016.

We encourage you to use this 2011 Buyers' Directory & Newcomers' Guide as a valuable tool for products and services in our area.

- If you are a Chamber member, please support the success of your fellow members by choosing to do business with one another!
- If your business is not yet a Chamber member, please join us! In our thriving Chamber committees, we welcome talented, dedicated, and enthusiastic business professionals to "roll up their sleeves" for the benefit of Chesterfield. As a byproduct of this strategic committee work, many valuable business relationships are formed! Also, exceptional sponsorship opportunities await you. Please call us now at 804-748-6364 and help make a difference!

- If you are a citizen of Chesterfield County, please consider giving our member businesses a chance to earn your loyalty!
- If you are new to the area or considering relocating here, please contact any of our members, county officials, or Chamber officers so that we may welcome you with Chesterfield's unique hospitality. We hope you will make Chesterfield County your FIRST CHOICE COMMUNITY.

In Chesterfield County, we are open for business and new opportunities!

2010 Provides Hope for a Successful 2011

Best wishes to all of our Chesterfield County businesses for a prosperous 2011!

Few if any of us could have anticipated the economic climate that has prevailed globally over the past year or so. However, our business community rose to the challenge, and 2010 was a year of many successes in the county.

We broke ground on the new I-295 Meadowville Interchange, which will serve the Meadowville Technology Park and surrounding area and encourage high-tech businesses to locate there. This $17 million project—the result of a unique partnership between the county and the business community—will be a boon to the county for decades to come, and will have spin-off benefits for businesses of all sizes in the county and the region.

SportsQuest, similarly, went from an idea to a reality in 2010, and area shops, hotels, restaurants and other businesses already enjoy noticeable benefits that will grow annually as SportsQuest attracts more tournaments and other events, and thousands of visitors.

Virginia and Chesterfield jointly dedicated historic Route 1, and the county has partnered with historical groups and others to promote and celebrate the 400th anniversary of the founding of the City of Henricus this year, and the Sesquicentennial of the Civil War from 2011-2015. These events will similarly put us on the map and draw tremendous numbers of tourists and other visitors to the county.

A partnership that included the Chamber of Commerce, the county and schools, and others resulted in the www.shopchesterfieldfirst.com website, which encourages county residents to support local businesses while helping schools' PTA groups. Many county businesses have chosen to advertise on the site. This site provides residents with information and tangible enticements for shopping locally.

The Chesterfield County Chamber of Commerce itself had a great year. The Celebration of the Vine wine festival drew 5,000 attendees last year, and continues to grow in popularity each year. The Chamber of Commerce also trained more than 400 companies in ways they can better market their businesses, and added 149 new business members. Achieving those numbers in a tough economy demonstrates the high value the Chamber delivers to its members.

Chesterfield County values the Chamber of Commerce and its members, and looks forward to working together in 2011.

Sincerely,

Providing a FIRST CHOICE community through excellence in public service

Each historic place in Chesterfield County tells a story—from the building of the New World, to the fight for independence, the struggles between North and South during the Civil War, and then the reconstruction of our nation. We are still leading the way today.

The Birth of Chesterfield County

The area we now know as Chesterfield, which is rich in culture and steeped in history came to be established in a very unique way. The first colonists began moving into the area within a few years after Jamestown's founding in 1607, however Chesterfield would not be created until 1749. Formed from the southern half of Henrico County, it was one of Virginia's original shires. The county took its name from the celebrated literary and politician Philip Dormer Stanhope, Fourth Earl of Chesterfield. Lord Chesterfield was known for his "good manners and writing."

Chesterfield originally encompassed the entire area between the James and Appomattox Rivers to a point of about 25 miles west of the fall line. These two rivers, which converge at the county's eastern tip, define nearly four-fifths of its boundary while the western border is formed by an arbitrary line running northeast from a tributary of the Appomattox. The new county was separated into two precincts, Manchester and Dale parishes, for better management and control. Manchester Parish covered an area from the mouth of Falling Creek, north to Boshers' Dam bordering the James River to the place of its beginning and just covering the outskirts of what is Midlothian.

Dale Parish covered not only Winterpock and Skinquarter but also Midlothian and the part of the county along the James west of Boshers' Dam. This administrative reconstruction was conducted to better serve the growing region. The first commercially mined coal came from the Midlothian area in 1750. Coal was being shipped from Chesterfield and was one of the county's major economic assets.

Henricus Historical Park

In 1611, Jamestown settlers left the hardships of the first English settlement. Sir Thomas Dale, following instructions from the London Company, led approximately 300 soldiers and tradesmen to build the second permanent English settlement in the New World in what is today known as Chesterfield County, Virginia. The Citie of Henricus, named in honor of Henry, Prince of Wales, is located on a bluff overlooking one of the most scenic areas of the James River just off Route 10.

The location, according to Dale, was as "convenient, strong, healthie and a sweete seate to plant a new Towne in." In subsequent years, the Citie of Henricus flourished and expanded into adjoining settlements. What began here had an unprecedented impact upon the growth and destiny of America.

Pocahontas resided here in the home of the Reverend Alexander Whitaker and began her education in the Christian faith. It was at Henricus that she met a successful tobacco planter, John Rolfe, whom she married in April 1614.

Henricus' history also boasts the first private ownership of land and the development of the American system of free enterprise. It was at Henricus that tobacco crops were first grown and cultivated and where many large self-sustaining plantations began. In addition, the first university was chartered; the first hospital, Mt. Malady, was built and operated; and the industries of ironworks and brick making were first successfully practiced in the New World.

Today, the 32-acre Henricus Historical Park includes a partially-recreated settlement. This year, the park will commemorate its 400th anniversary with special events and programming. For more information, visit www.henricus.org or www.chesterfieldtourism.org.

The Creation of Chesterfield County

In 1634, the King of England directed the formation of eight counties in the colony of Virginia. One of these became Henrico County, which extended to a large area on both sides of the James River. Almost 100 years later, Henrico and Chesterfield Counties were separated into the counties they are today. During the American Revolution, Chesterfield County played an active role in the defense of Virginia and the new nation. Hundreds of county men joined the Continental army and served in the militia. In 1780, with the invasion of the South by the British and the loss of thousands of men, a major training and equipment center was established at Chesterfield Courthouse. One of the few naval encounters in Virginia during the Revolutionary War took place on April 21, 1781, at Osbornes, an extinct port town along the James River northeast of Chester. This was one of the last confrontations between the British and American troops before the Battle of Yorktown. British General Benedict Arnold, marching toward Richmond, caught an American fleet of about 20 ships by surprise. The commander of the American fleet, James Maxwell, refused to surrender, and a devastating battle ensued. British guns on the high bluffs along the James destroyed the American ships. Those that were not sunk were set afire or scuttled. The cargo of the ships was captured, and many of the ships were seized. Today, the remnants of the sunken ships can still be seen. Most of the vessels lie sunken in mud caused by silting after the Dutch Gap Canal was cut in the 1870s, making the Osborne's loop of the James a backwater.

The Sesquicentennial of the American Civil War, 2011–2015

The Civil War’s 150th anniversary will be commemorated beginning this year, through 2015. The Virginia General Assembly created the Virginia Sesquicentennial of the American Civil War Commission in 2006 to prepare for, and commemorate, the sesquicentennial of Virginia’s participation in the nation’s bloodiest conflict, where as many as one million soldiers died. Three out of every five Civil War battles were fought in Virginia and some of the Confederacy’s top leaders were Virginians. The commission’s motto, “Understanding Our Past, Embracing Our Future,” demonstrates the importance of learning about the past. The commission asked localities to establish sesquicentennial committees to focus on telling their unique stories. Chesterfield County developed its committee in 2007, and is planning legacy projects and special events to be held during the four-year commemoration.

Chesterfield County’s Civil War History

What if the Civil War had ended in the spring of 1864 instead of 1865? Imagine how many lives could have been saved had the war ended a year earlier.

This could have happened if Union General Benjamin Butler’s Bermuda Hundred Campaign of 1864 had been successful in capturing Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy. In May of 1864, General Benjamin F. Butler landed 40,000 troops on the Bermuda Hundred peninsula in Chesterfield County. He planned to set up a base of operations before advancing toward Richmond and Petersburg. Battles fought during May and early June prevented Butler’s advances, ultimately pushing his troops back into defensive positions in Bermuda Hundred, where they would remain for the rest of the war.

Union and Confederate troops stationed in the county also played important roles in battles during the Siege of Petersburg. When Petersburg fell on April 2, 1865, the majority of the army under the command of Robert E. Lee passed through Chesterfield County on the retreat to Appomattox.

The county contains 10 Civil War sites, each with its own unique story. Collectively, these “links in a chain” tell the larger story of an important campaign of the war. The parks close at sunset, with the exception of the Dutch Gap Conservation Area.

The Bermuda Hundred Tour Guide is an excellent way for residents to learn more about the history in their own backyards. It includes an extensive collection of Library of Congress images of the sites and the people associated with the Bermuda Hundred Campaign. Another unique aspect of the tour guide is the maps developed with Geographic Information Services, or GIS, technology. Historic maps and battle maps were geo-referenced with modern ones to create new maps that give greater understanding of the decisions made by the military commanders, since landscapes often define where battles are fought.

The book can be found at the Magnolia Grange and Henricus Historical Park gift shops or ordered online at www.civilwartraveler.com. Proceeds from the sale of the book will be used to fund trails and new interpretive signs for Civil War parks in Chesterfield County

A Business Community Designed to Help You Flourish

As a diverse business community, Chesterfield County is often insulated from the economic turbulence that rocks areas dominated by singular types of industry. Add to that a robust pro-business economy, low unemployment figures, affluent suburban communities, and a regular stream of incoming industry, and you have a county that is an ideal setting for business prosperity.

Chesterfield County Chamber of Commerce Where Business Starts

The Chamber works to serve, protect, and promote the common interests of our membership and the business community. It is a friendly, open and welcoming Chamber, not ruled by elitist cliques.

Most of the Chamber members have a philosophy of sitting at a new table at every luncheon meeting in order to get to know as many new people as possible to broaden business relationships. How productive would it be to sit with the same people every week? So don't hesitate to come solo. Every effort will be made to make you feel comfortable. For more information call 804-748-6364 or visit www.chesterfieldchamber.com.

Chesterfield County Economic Development Offers a Wealth of Resources for Businesses

One of the reasons Chesterfield County has become a magnet for new business is the variety of available programs, services, and incentives.

Starting and growing a business in Chesterfield County couldn't be easier! With the launch of "My Business Starts Here," Chesterfield Economic Development and the Chesterfield County Public Library have partnered to offer seamless service and resources for small business needs. The new web portal at www.mybusinessstartshere.com is designed to direct entrepreneurs to solutions to their business questions. Users will find a step-by-step guide to starting a business, information on sources of capital, how to get a business license in Chesterfield, additional requirements for certain business types and information on how to do business with government. Users can access the portal from their home computer or any county library location, where they can also utilize a host of free tools, free expertise, and free technology.

Chesterfield Economic Development's "corporate concierge" services include site selection assistance, information about site and building availability, permit process guidance, and workforce development. You'll also get business and financial incentives, statistical data, and general assistance on other business and industry issues.

An emerging development, Meadowville Technology Park in Chester is a 1,300-acre industrial park offering premier sites for a variety of companies. It is ideally suited to serve water-intensive users such as pharmaceutical, food processing, and semiconductor plants. Still in the early stages of development, incoming businesses can help shape their site to suit their needs.

Since Chesterfield County is strategically located off I-95 and I-295, it is also a first choice location for large distribution facilities with the added advantage of being a high-quality living environment for employees. If you are considering a business venture in Chesterfield County, contact the Department of Economic Development at 804-318-8550, toll-free at 800-548-9161 or visit www.chesterfieldbusiness.com.

We Value our Existing Companies

Over 70% of capital investment and more than 50% of job creation comes from the county's existing businesses. The Business First Chesterfield Outreach Program was created as a focused effort to support our existing businesses and ensuring the county is doing everything it can to maintain a positive business climate. Trained volunteers and Chesterfield Economic Development (CED) staff conduct face-to-face interviews with key executives asking these business leaders to share their opinions about doing business here.

The business intelligence gathered through this outreach process identifies challenges and obstacles facing county businesses, providing county policy leaders with a better understanding of the business environment and helps them design programs and services to remove or reduce barriers to business growth.

If you are interested in meeting with a Business First Chesterfield team member, call Chesterfield Economic Development at 804-318-8550 or request a visit at www.businessfirstrichmond.com.

BizWorks—A Place for Business to Grow

Founded in 2001, BizWorks Enterprise Center was established to cultivate new and emerging businesses that contribute to the economic vitality of Chesterfield County through job creation and capital investment.

This means the organization provides businesses with the resources, networks and advisory services necessary to launch, sustain, and grow business in a competitive market.

The BizWorks facility in the Jefferson Davis Enterprise Zone provides businesses with county and state incentives. For more information, call 804-275-5190 or visit www.bizworkscenter.org.

Expansion of Fort Lee and the Military Supply Chain Provides an Economic Boost

The Defense Supply Center Richmond (DSCR) serves as the aviation supply chain manager for the Defense Logistics Agency and is the primary supply source for millions of repair parts and operating supply items. DSCR's primary customers are the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps.

Nearby Fort Lee is the focal point for Army logistics and provides support to U.S. military operations around the world. The Army's quartermaster center will nearly double military and civilian jobs, as well as the number of facilities by 2012.

Another 4,000+ non-government jobs will mean a boom to area employment with an additional 12,000 positions.

Chesterfield County Airport A Prime Metro Position to Serve Business

Well over 130 general aviation and corporate aircraft are based at Chesterfield County Airport, a first-class General Aviation Airport and reliever for Richmond International. The airport is adjacent to Chesterfield Industrial Park with separate taxiways for industrial users.

Charter services, FAA-approved repair services, flight training, and aircraft storage are available with a 5,500-foot, lighted runway. The airport is also headquarters for the Virginia Wing of the Civil Air Patrol, the State Police Department of Aviation, and located at the juncture of Route 288 and Route 10. Chesterfield County Airport has plenty of public parking, a new high-tech terminal, and a full-service restaurant with banquet and conference facilities complete with catering services.

Housing - See Why We are One of the Best Places to Live

Chesterfield County, one of the best places in America to live, work, play, and raise a family, offers everything from starter homes for first time homebuyers to grand waterfront properties to easy living communities for retirees. Approximately 80% of county residents own their homes, compared to 68% statewide. Recent residential re-sales had an average price tag of $250,318.

Get More Bang for Your Buck in Southern Chesterfield

Some of the most affordable housing in the area is located in southern Chesterfield which is also home to many of the region's major employers, such as DuPont, Philip Morris, and Defense Supply Center Richmond. The expansion of Fort Lee in nearby Prince George County will have a tremendous impact on southern Chesterfield County when an additional 8,200 military workers, civilians, contractors, and students start arriving over the next few years. The 5,500-acre complex will become the country's second largest training installation which will inspire the growth of housing, schools, and retail centers.

Offering Communities for All Lifestyles

With the addition of the Meadowville Interchange, eastern Chesterfield continues to grow with neighborhoods like Meadowville Landing and Mount Blanco. Additional apartment communities like White Oaks and Rivermont are providing much needed housing for the increasing number of employees in this area.

In the heart of Chester, the Village is home to one of Chesterfield's premier mixed use communities. Chester Village Green offers tree-lined sidewalks, an ice cream shop, neighborhood restaurants, a public library, and local retailers.

For those seeking a slower pace and a peaceful setting, Chesdin Landing offers a picturesque lake, private golf course, and spacious lots set in the country landscape of Chesterfield along Lake Chesdin.

Midlothian remains one of the region's fastest growing communities. Residents in suburban neighborhoods such as Tarrington, Salisbury, Charter Colony, and The Grove, enjoy their recent ranking as Money Magazine's 37th best place to live in the nation.

Historic Bon Air was once known as a getaway for Richmond's wealthiest 19th-century city dwellers. An influx of permanent residents followed, building charming Victorian homes loaded with gingerbread trim. Turn-of-the-century mansions are majestically stationed along the winding roads of these quiet, tree-lined neighborhoods that now include modern-day, low-maintenance townhouses and modest single-family homes.

Western Chesterfield County has an abundance of award-winning neighborhoods like Brandermill, Collington, and Hampton Park. From lakes, golf, tennis, pools, shopping areas, office parks, and biking trails, these neighborhoods are ideal places to raise families.

Thanks to highway Route 288, I-95, and I-295 Chesterfield County residents have easy and fast access to downtown Richmond and surrounding counties.

If you are considering a move to Chesterfield County, the Chamber can help! Here are some of our members with services just for you!

Serving the Community

Chesterfield County, a trendsetter and recognized leader among local governments in America, is one of few localities in the nation where both local government and the school division have earned the distinctive Senate Productivity and Quality Award Gold Medallion (SPQA) award. We've also been named "One of America's 20 Hottest White-Collar Addresses" by the Wall Street Journal, ranked the 17th "Best Place to Live in America" by American City Business Journals, and recognized four times in a row as one of the "100 Best Communities in America for Young People" by America's Promise Alliance.

A Reputation for Solid Financial Performance.

One indicator of the county's financial responsibility and integrity is our AAA credit rating received on outstanding general obligation bonds from each of the three major rating agencies. Lower interest rates on debt are just one of the benefits that the county receives based on this rating.

Chesterfield County is governed by five elected district supervisors who appoint a county administrator to oversee its more than $1.1 billion budget. Chesterfield is the county seat, and has no incorporated towns within the county. Some supervisors hold regular constituents' meetings. To be added to a supervisor's mailing list for notifications, please call 804-318-8393.

While the county traces its roots to the year 1611, there's nothing old-fashioned about the way county government communicates with its residents. We pride ourselves on an active, award-winning website, www.chesterfield.gov, a wide array of public service television programming on Comcast; a quarterly e-newsletter for citizens; communications from the elected Board of Supervisors; an annual report available to all households; televised public meetings, and many more communications to keep residents informed and encouraged to participate in their local government processes.

In reaching out to the county's growing multicultural population, Chesterfield County recognizes that while citizens learn English, they still need access to vital government services such as public safety, health, assistance with payment of taxes, and so forth. The county offers translation services and Spanish-language information on Comcast television programming and has an active Multicultural Commission.

Public Safety—Low Crime Rate

Within the Richmond metro area, Chesterfield County has the lowest major-crime rate per capita, and we achieve a high crime-clearance rate. We employ more than 400 police officers, 200 deputies, 420 career firefighters/emergency medical technicians, and approximately 100 active volunteer firefighters, and 100 volunteer rescue-squad personnel. A sense of security is not something we take lightly.

The Police Department is involved in community programs like Neighborhood Watch Programs and the business-focused Chesterfield County/Colonial Heights Crime Solvers Program to help stop crime in its tracks. Crime Solvers' mission is to provide information that law enforcement agencies need to solve crimes.

The Chesterfield County Department of Fire and Emergency Medical Services provides a complete range of fire prevention, firefighting, emergency medical services and emergency management. Fire and EMS personnel work closely with schools, civic groups and business to teach and promote fire safety and emergency preparedness.

The Sheriff's Office provides courtroom security, operates the county jail, and performs many other duties that enhance the public safety of Chesterfield County. The Sheriff's Office is among an elite group of law enforcement agencies having earned accreditation by the Virginia Law Enforcement Professional Standards Commission.

Only 82 of Virginia's 360 law enforcement agencies are so certified, and Chesterfield County is one of only eleven Virginia jurisdictions where both the Police Department and the Sheriff's Office have acquired this accreditation. All of these agencies and programs work in unison to provide the enviable public safety record Chesterfield County enjoys.

Getting Involved in Chesterfield County:

All members of the Board of Supervisors are accessible by letter, telephone, e-mail, or in person. To be added to your supervisor's mailing list, call 804-318-8393.

A citizen e-newsletter, Currents, is produced quarterly. Go to www.chesterfield.gov/Currents/ to subscribe to this free newsletter.

Chesterfield Matters, a television program on Comcast Cable Channel 17 each Thursday from 8-8:30 p.m., is hosted by the chairman of the Board of Supervisors for a half-hour show.

Chesterfield LIVE!, a 30-minute live television program, is broadcast at 7 p.m. on Comcast Cable Channel 17, the third Monday of February, April, June, August, October and December.

Comcast Newsmakers, five-minute interviews about county topics, are broadcast intermittently throughout the month on Comcast Cable Channel 26.

Chesterfield al Dia is a five-minute Spanish newscast at 8 p.m. the third Monday of each month on Comcast Channel 17.

Education is Important in Chesterfield County

The reputation of the county's public schools often inspires families to make their home in Chesterfield County.

But don't just take our word for it: SchoolMatch, an independent research and data service, consistently rates Chesterfield County Public Schools as having precisely the balance parents seek.

Chesterfield residents say they are happy with their choice: In a 2010 survey, nearly 86% of residents rated Chesterfield schools as excellent or good. Is it any wonder that—for the fourth time—Chesterfield County was named one of the “100 Best Communities in America for Young People” by America's Promise Alliance?

- 58,691 students as of September 30, 2010
- $517.8 million operating budget
- $8,635 cost per student
- Demographics from 2009-10 show a student body that is 58% white, 28% black, 8% Hispanic, 3% Asian/Pacific Islander and 1% American Indian/Alaskan native/unspecified.
- 29.6% of students qualify for free or reduced-price meals in elementary schools, middle schools and Chesterfield Community High, which is the only high school in the federal lunch program.

Good Steward of Tax Dollars

Audits consistently prove that Chesterfield schools are efficient and effective. Based on student enrollment, Chesterfield is among the country's 100 largest school systems but still keeps costs low. In 2008, out of 132 school divisions in Virginia, Chesterfield ranked 102 lowest in total per-pupil costs and 107 lowest in administrative per-pupil costs.

Standard & Poor's compared reading and math proficiency with money spent and determined that Chesterfield schools are extremely effective. The school division's performance ranks third among 15 of Virginia's largest localities. Also, the school system received commendations from an audit team that conducted a state-sponsored efficiency review of the division.

Every School is Fully Accredited

- For the third year in a row, every Chesterfield County school is fully accredited and students continue to perform well on SOL tests.
- For three of the past four years, the Chesterfield school system has met the objectives of No Child Left Behind and made adequate yearly progress.
- More than 85% of Chesterfield students graduate on time, outperforming their peers across Virginia.
- Great teachers, foster great students, and Chesterfield County Public Schools make attracting and retaining the best teachers and staff a priority. Working in Chesterfield schools are 83 National Board Certified Teachers.
- Hundreds of businesses and organizations partner with schools, and thousands of individuals volunteer their time in classrooms.

Launching Successful Students

More than 4,400 students graduated in 2010: 57 percent earned advanced diplomas, and 90 percent planned to attend a two- or four-year college. The class of 2010 earned $18.2 million in scholarships.

Chesterfield's curriculum is rigorous and relevant. Advanced Placement classes offer intense academic experiences. High school students also have the opportunity to take dual enrollment classes that carry college credit, and courses that can lead to an industry certification.

Safety nets help struggling students reach their goals. Alternative study options available include day and night programs, as well as online courses.

Choices

Initiatives include a school readiness program for 4-year-olds at a few schools, world language instruction in some elementary schools and algebra for every student during their middle school years.

Center-based programs in elementary and middle schools help meet the needs of gifted learners, and English for Speakers of Other Languages program reflects growing diversity in the county.

High school students may choose to attend their neighborhood school or they may apply to a specialty center or two regional governor's schools based on individual interests and talents. Specialty centers allow students to explore interests and potential career paths, as does the Chesterfield Technical Center, which offers a full range of career and technical courses tailored to current workplace needs. Here are Chesterfield's specialty centers and governor's schools:

- Visual and Performing Arts
- Teaching and Learning Through Technology
- Mass Communications
- Spanish Immersion
- Mathematics and Science
- Health Science
- Humanities
- International Baccalaureate (two sites)
- Governor's Academy for Engineering Studies
- Leadership and International Relations
- Chesterfield Technical Center
- Appomattox Regional Governor's School for the Arts and Technology
- Maggie L. Walker Governor's School for Government and International Studies

Recognizing Excellence

- Clover Hill High student Abby Badura won the national Wendy's High School Heisman, rising to the top of more than 55,000 outstanding student-athletes.
- Chesterfield has four National Blue Ribbon Schools: James River High, Clover Hill Elementary, Robious Elementary and Grange Hall Elementary.
- Four schools have achieved National School Change Awards: Bensley Elementary, Chalkley Elementary, Harrowgate Elementary and Carver Middle.
- Chesterfield County Public Schools has the state's top bus driver: Leslie Alderman.
- Chesterfield educators won three Milken National Educator Awards in four years: Laura Lay of James River High, Joshua Cole of Chalkley Elementary and Laura Marshall of Grange Hall Elementary.
- Two teachers have won Presidential Awards for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching: Sharon Hoffert of James River High and Carrie Persing of the MathScience Innovation Center and previously at Harrowgate Elementary.
- In 2011, 26 Chesterfield schools won Virginia Index of Performance awards, with four of those schools winning the highest honor, the Governor's Award for Educational Excellence.

Residency Requirements

Students must reside with a parent or legal guardian in Chesterfield County to attend Chesterfield County Public Schools. Students attend the schools in their attendance areas unless a waiver is granted or they are accepted in a center-based or specialty program. To determine your home school, call 804-748-1666 or go to www.chesterfield.k12.va.us, then click "schools," then "school lookup feature."

School Entrance Age

Children must reach their fifth birthday by September 30 of the school year to be eligible to attend kindergarten. Kindergarten registration day will take place April 7, 2011, at every elementary school.

Daylong prekindergarten programs for at-risk 4-year-olds are available at a few elementary schools. Also, there is a preschool program for children with disabilities who will be 2 years old by September 30. Each year, Chesterfield County Public Schools conducts Child Find to locate children with disabilities who need special education services. If you suspect your child has a disability, contact the Office of Special Education at 804-594-1732 or your child's home school.

Chesterfield County School Board

The School Board is the governing body of Chesterfield County Public Schools. The board's responsibilities include policy making, budget approval, hiring and evaluation of the superintendent and hearing appeals of discipline and grievance issues. Board members are elected to four-year terms; the current terms expire December 31, 2011.

Additional School Board information can be found in the School Board section of the school division's website, www.chesterfield.k12.va.us. If more information is needed, please call the Clerk's Office at 804-748-1497.

Public Libraries

The public library system in Chesterfield County has a central library and eight branches. If you cannot visit the library, our outreach service assists individuals residing in Chesterfield County who cannot easily visit their local library. Each library has a meeting room that is available to nonprofit organizations. There are story times for preschoolers, book discussion groups, computer instruction, summer reading programs, and many additional special programs. Other popular library services include computers, Wi-Fi, copiers, and electronic resources.

The library web site, www.library.chesterfield.gov, always has the latest information about new materials, library programs and services.

After High School

John Tyler Community College, a public, two-year institution of higher education open since 1967, offers nearly 60 in-demand transfer, career and technical programs. The college currently serves more than 10,000 students at its campuses in Chester and Midlothian, at its Nursing Education Center, and through its online classes. Visit www.jtcc.edu.

Entertainment- Chesterfield is the Center of Fun

While Chesterfield has its cosmopolitan side, there is an abundance of history and outdoor adventures for all ages and interests. Chesterfield County boasts miles of nature trails, lakes, neighborhood pools, tennis courts, and more than 19 golf courses, many of which are top rated.

Chesterfield County is also ideally located in central Virginia, just two hours away from the Blue Ridge Mountains and ski resorts, two hours away in the other direction from beaches and waves, and two hours away from the nation's capital, Washington D.C. We're home to several professional sports teams and two major theme parks less than an hour's drive—all of which punctuates how conveniently located Chesterfield County is for work, leisure, and raising a family. Here are just some of the area Chesterfield County highlights.

Outdoor Adventures and Sports Make for Active Relaxation

The James and Appomattox Rivers make up much of the county's border along with the 3,000-acre Lake Chesdin which makes this a prime location for boating and sailing, fishing and water sports. The James River Parade of Lights is an annual event you don't want to miss.

There are athletic leagues for youth and adults, as well as those with disabilities, including basketball, baseball, softball, volleyball, soccer, field hockey, football, lacrosse, and more. Older adults can choose from watercolor painting and bridge to tennis, golf, or the annual Virginia Senior Games event, with several competitions from archery to tennis and horseshoes.

History Can be Fun, Just Don't Tell the Kids it's Educational

Probably the most well known and oldest example of living history is Henricus, the recreated 1611 city of firsts, located on the James River. Midlothian was home to the first coal mines in the United States, and today its village is still a blast from the past with an array of antique shops and at Mid-Lothian Mines Park which showcases the county's coal mining history. The county, located between Richmond and Petersburg, was a key part of the Union's Bermuda Hundred Campaign of 1864 to capture Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy. The county contains 10 Civil War sites, each with its own unique story.

More than 4,000 Acres of Parks and Recreation Facilities That's a lot of Green

Chesterfield County has more than 40 parks and athletic facilities, including nearly 300 soccer, softball, baseball, football, and lacrosse fields.

Sport leagues or courses, and events are sponsored by Chesterfield County Parks and Recreation or co-sponsored with one of 50 athletic organizations. Park facilities include trails, playgrounds, picnic shelters, a nature center, fairgrounds, a challenge course, an equestrian center, conservation areas and two community buildings.

Program guides are printed three times a year and are available at county libraries and the Parks and Recreation Administration Building at 6801 Mimms Loop. To receive a guide by mail or for more information, call 804-748-1623 or visit www.chesterfield.gov/parks.

Activities to Inspire and Educate

Dutch Gap Conservation Area is Nature Beautifully Preserved

The Dutch Gap Conservation Area provides 810 acres of woods, wetlands, and wildlife. Bordered by the James River, the area includes a blue heron rookery in the marsh. For Dutch Gap information call 804-748-1623.

Henricus Historical Park will take you Back 400 Years

Founded in 1611 by Sir Thomas Dale, the Citee of Henricus is the second successful English settlement in North America and will commemorate its 400th anniversary in September 2011. Henricus Historical Park is a living history museum located within the Dutch Gap Conservation Area with Pre-K-12 and adult education programs, including indoor and outdoor meeting and special event space available for rental. Henricus is a non-profit organization which operates in partnership with the Henricus Foundation and counties of Chesterfield and Henrico. For more information about Henricus Historical Park, visit www.henricus.org.

Pocahontas State Park has Hiking, Biking, Fishing and More

Pocahontas State Park, which has been named one of the 20 best campgrounds in America, is located just south of State Route 288 off Beach Road. The 7,900-acre park offers boating and fishing on two lakes, hiking, biking, horseback-riding trails, picnic shelters, a swimming pool, a campground and a conference center. There is even an outdoor amphitheater that offers outdoor concerts during the months of May through September. Call 804-796-4255 for more information or visit www.virginiastateparks.gov.

Top Notch Family Healthcare

No one wants to get sick or injured, but if it happens, you're in good shape in this county. We're well prepared with a large and impressive pool of board certified physicians and specialists, top-rated facilities, high tech surgery, as well as cutting-edge diagnostics.

The Chesterfield County Health District

The Chesterfield Health District is composed of three local health departments—Chesterfield County, Powhatan County, and the City of Colonial Heights. As a state agency, each local health department operates in a cooperative relationship with the city or county it serves. The health district offers family health programs including children and adult immunizations, family planning, maternity, and children's dental services.

The Division of Mental Health serves county individuals and families with emergency services, a mental health center, outpatient services, group therapy, and rehabilitation. Visit www.vdh.state.va.us/LHD/chesterfield/index.htm.

Bon Secours St. Francis Medical Center

Bon Secours St. Francis Medical Center, a state-of-the-art, acute-care hospital, opened September 2005 with 130 private patient rooms. It offers the latest medical and surgical services to residents south of the James River. As one of the fastest-growing medical facilities in Virginia, St. Francis has been approved to add 54 private patient rooms, allowing it to deliver additional options for the community.

Twenty-four-hour emergency care for adults and children features the latest in digital cardiac monitoring, radiology, CT scanning, and electronic medical records systems. Patients are guaranteed that they will be seen in 30 minutes or less.

Women's services include the full spectrum in obstetrics, gynecology, and diagnostics. The Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) in the New Life Center is the first of its kind in Richmond in more than a decade and the only Southside intensive care unit with 24-hour neonatology.

St. Francis is proud to offer the strength of its Stroke, Orthopaedic, and Cardiac Centers, including STEMI angioplasty, as well as a wide variety of other care options for adults and children. Across campus, the 55,000-square-foot comprehensive Bon Secours Cancer Institute provides complete medical and radiation oncology services.

In addition, groundbreaking for Bon Secours St. Francis Watkins Centre took place in December 2010. Once complete, Phase I will cover 100,000 square feet and house a free-standing 24/7 emergency center, a comprehensive diagnostic imaging center, and a physician medical office building. Visit www.Bonsecours.com.

CJW Medical Center's Chippenham and Johnston-Willis Hospitals

CJW Medical Center, part of HCA Virginia Health System, offers 758 beds between Chippenham and Johnston-Willis Hospitals.

Chippenham Hospital, home to Levinson Heart Hospital, was named as Virginia's number one Heart Hospital by HealthGrades for 2007, 2008, and 2009. In addition, Chippenham offers a dedicated Pediatric ER, Neonatal Intensive Care Unit and Pediatric Intensive Care Unit, ensuring all needs for children are met. They are the leader in behavioral health services with Tucker Psychiatric Pavilion and the Southside's only Wound Healing Center.

Johnston-Willis Hospital offers a full range of inpatient and emergency services, and has been honored for its Neurosurgical, Obstetric and Cancer care. Johnston-Willis houses the region's only Gamma Knife Perfexion and Neuroscience ICU at the Neuroscience and Gamma Knife Center. In 2010, Johnston-Willis was honored as Southside's favorite place to have a baby, and also became the first Richmond hospital to earn The Joint Commission's accreditation for managing high risk pregnancies. The Thomas Johns Cancer Hospital is Richmond's only integrated hospital dedicated to the care of cancer patients and survivors, and has been recognized nationally for its outstanding oncology services. In its ancillary services, Johnston-Willis offers a 3T MRI and Open MRI for those patients who are claustrophobic or require a larger unit.

Both Chippenham and Johnston-Willis Hospitals have maternal infant units, are accredited stroke centers, and have imaging services, including digital mammography. CJW Medical Center also boasts five sports medicine locations to care for athletes of all ages and skill levels. All of the HCA Virginia hospitals ERs are chest pain accredited, stroke accredited and offer ER wait times you can trust—simply text ER to 23000 or go online to www.cjwmedical.com to see their ER wait times.

Fast Facts to Get Newcomers up to Speed

Chesterfield County's population is 318,000+.

Chesterfield County possesses a mix of historic villages, country estates and modern planned communities. To help make your transition as smooth as possible, we've compiled the following information.

Utilities and Household Services

Call "Miss Utility" Before You Dig

Prior to any excavating or digging, state law requires that the digger telephone "Miss Utility" at 800-552-7001. The location of underground utilities can be marked to prevent damages to utility lines and disruption of services to our customers.

Utility Emergencies

Chesterfield County is responsible for maintaining water lines up to the meter and wastewater lines up to the property line. Lines on the property are the responsibility of the property owner. Utility emergency crews are on call 24 hours a day. If you see an emergency or suspect a problem with any county-maintained utility line, call 804-748-1310 (Monday-Friday 7:30 a.m.-4 p.m.) Call 804-744-1360 or 804-768-0140 (Petersburg area only) for emergency assistance after regular business hours, weekends or holidays.

Water and Wastewater Services

Chesterfield County provides water and wastewater services. No deposit is required, but an initial fee will be charged on your first bill. For more information, call 804-748-1291.

Trash Collection

Private contractors (listed in the phone book) provide weekly residential trash pickup. The county also operates two Convenience Centers where residents can dispose of trash and drop-off recycling. For more information please call 804-748-1297.

Bulky Waste

Collection of bulky items, such as furniture or appliances, is available. Call 804-748-1297.

Leaves

Leaf burning is prohibited in most of the county. For more information about leaf burning, call the Fire and Life Safety Division at 804-748-1426.

Recycling

The curbside recycling program is available to every single-family home in the county. Collection containers are located throughout the county for drive-up and drop-off recycling of glass containers, mixed paper, aluminum, and newspaper. For more information, call 804-340-0900.

Animal Tags

Licenses must be purchased for dogs older than 6 months, with certification of rabies vaccination. For households with more than three dogs, special zoning and fees are required. For more information, call 804-748-1201.

County Registrations, Taxes and Fees Automobiles

Vehicles must be registered with DMV within 90 days after moving into Virginia or the county. For more information, call 804-748-1281.

Personal Property Taxes

Chesterfield County's tax rate for personal property is $3.60 per $100 of assessed value. Taxable personal property includes motor vehicles, motor homes, boats, boat motors, trailers, mobile homes, aircraft, and personal property owned and used for a business. Personal property taxes are due on June 5 of each year. For more information, call 804-748-1201.

Real Estate Taxes

The real-estate tax rate for individual houses is $.95 per $100 of assessed value. The Board of Supervisors adopts the real estate tax rate each April. Real estate taxes are due and payable in two equal payments on June 5 and December 5 of each year. An equal installment payment plan is also available to ease large end-of-year payments. For more information, call 804-748-1201.

Local Sales Taxes

The state retail sales tax, which is assessed on purchases such as food, clothing and household items, is 5%, of which 1% is returned to the locality. This is a great reason for residents to shop in Chesterfield County.

Voter Registration

Voter registration is available year-round at 9848 Lori Road. Office hours are 8:30 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday-Friday. For more information, call 804-748-1471.

Building Permits

Permits are required for erecting or altering a structure, enlarging finished space, and adding or installing new plumbing, gas, electrical or mechanical systems. Examples include construction of decks, porches, swimming pools, Florida rooms, sheds of more than 150 square feet, carports and gazebos, and the placement of mobile homes; finishing of unfinished space; installation of new wood stoves or gas logs, new central heating and air conditioning equipment; replacement of electrical panels; and installation of lawn sprinkler systems. Cooperative Extension

Whether you are looking for information on growing plants or composting, the dates of an upcoming 4-H summer camp, or lecture series on financial management, the Cooperative Extension is the office to contact.

The Chesterfield County Cooperative Extension office is a collaborative outreach and education service established between the county and the land grant universities, Virginia Tech and Virginia State, to provide unbiased, research-based information. The core of the educational program revolves around 4-H Youth Development, Family and Consumer Services, and Agriculture and Natural Resources. The Extension office has two other components, the Food and Nutrition Program and the Collaboration of Education, Resources, Culture and Assistance (CERCA). For more information call 804-751-4401 or visit www.chesterfield.gov/extension.

Parks

With more than 30 public parks, Chesterfield County offers a wide variety of recreational programs. For the parks near you, or to be added to a mailing list of programs and activities, call 804-748-1623. Abundant woods, wetlands, and wildlife may be found at the 810-acre Dutch Gap Conservation Area, believed to be the first county-owned conservation area in the nation. Pocahontas State Park is also located in the county. For more information call 804-748-1623.

Historic Landmarks

Historic sites abound in Chesterfield County; some even date back to the early 17th century. Each site tells a story, from the building of the New World and the fight for independence from English rule, to the struggles between the North and South during the Civil War. A visit to Chesterfield County's historic sites provides a glimpse into Chesterfield's abundant history, architecture, industry, government, and agriculture. For more information about historic sites within the county, call 804-796-7045 or visit www.chesterfieldtourism.org.

Type of Government

Elected by district, a five-member Board of Supervisors governs Chesterfield County. The board appoints a county administrator, who directs the county's day-to-day operations. The county has an annual budget of more than $1 billion. Mail correspondence to your board representative or to the county administrator at P.O. Box 40, Chesterfield, VA., 23832, or call them directly at the number listed on page 18.
